Dear Sean:

Hi, how are you? I stumbled upon Freemont's website the other day (bored by school work mostly). It was nicely done! How's the high school coming along? Do you still work at BTI or just Freemont now? As you know, I am still at oxford doing my law degree, and will have one more year to go. Law is a fun subject, not least because I can finally get away from my calculator for good! I am heading back to Hong Kong this summer and will be working for a few law firms. I can't believe I have already left Hong Kong for 10 years (which also means I have known you for ten years...) I saw some pictures on your website, and I got to admit, you still look very much the same! Actually, I have always meant to thank you for all your kind help throughout the years, and I can't even begin to describe just the positive impact you had on me. For that, I am always very grateful. You might not remember, but one "comment" you wrote long time ago always lingers in my mind: "Your penchant for verbosity is tenaciously pervasive" haha, I do miss your quick quips.

Anyway, just want to drop you a quick note. Hope all is well in Toronto.

With best regards,

Adam A.
